No Art Fest, no problem:

LCA awards new Chalk Walk winners

Though the Village of Lewiston was without its annual Art Festival last weekend, that didn't stop the Lewiston Council on the Arts from hosting a celebration of creativity just off of Center Street.

At 4 p.m. Saturday, the LCA awarded winners in its inaugural "Chalk Your Walk" competition – right at the time judging would've taken place for the traditional Chalk Walk.

Professional artists and art educators scored the submissions on creativity and technique to determine the Best of Show. With 19 submissions by chalkers younger than 13 years of age, a third award, honorable mention, was also presented based on the online voting.

Best of Show, and $500, went to Erika Lalita Thurkins, whose drawing is shown above.

Per the LCA Facebook description: This is an interpretation of Black power as a goddess, drawing on classic Hindu imagery and symbolism. The four arms, as in the classical depictions of devas (goddesses), are ripe with symbolism. The bottom set of arms are in a gesture of "no fear": one hand is up to receive blessings, while one hand is extended to offer blessings. Simultaneously, it represents the extreme courage of giving through one's heart without restriction, even in the face of oppression, and the extreme courage of welcoming whatever is to come with surrender and serenity as a blessing and a channel for growth. The woman depicted also has a raised fist for solidarity and to express her power. She holds a black lotus, a signal of her grace.
