Santa visits Ransomville

The Santa Claus Parade held last Sunday afternoon in Ransomville was seen as attempting to bring some normalcy to the COVID-19 world, and restrictions that have canceled most of the holiday events in the area.

This year's parade consisted of cars representing the reindeer pulling Santa Claus. With help from the New York State Police and the Ransomville Volunteer Fire Co., the parade wound its way through the hamlet as people parked along the parade route to cheer Santa.

In the photos, Santa Claus waves to visitors along the parade route; parents bring their young ones out to see Santa. (Photos by Wayne Peters)
