and dads can get back to work. We can start that path to being normal and there'll come a time when we can talk about lifting this as well. We're just not there yet. We're going to continue keeping people safe and fighting to protect all New Yorkers. So just want to give those notices of what the lay of the land here is in the state of New York.

"And also, let's continue to wear the masks. The ones that really make a difference. The N95s, and President Biden is sending about 400 million. That's an extraordinary number, making those available. So, they're free. You can get three of them at a time, and they're going to be available at every place, the retail pharmacies, and stores where they're offering vaccinations right now, here in the state.

"If you're looking for a place to get your free heavy-duty, very efficient mask, go to vaccines.gov and it'll show you where to get those. And I want to thank President Biden for making those available to New Yorkers. So, check on that. But again, if I saw higher vaccination rates as well, I would sleep better at night, but our children and many people who are still vulnerable, all they have to do is show up, roll up their sleeves and get that shot, get the booster, and they're ready to roll and they can handle whatever comes next as we've seen.

"People who are vaccinated and boosted did not end up in the hospitals with omicron; they may have had symptoms, stayed home for the five days that they tested positive, but our hospitalizations are still, the vast majority, are people who are unvaccinated. And our kids are going to be sick if we don't get them vaccinated, so let's make sure that that happens as well. Let's give all the kids the protection they need to be able to stay in school and stay safe."

The legality of Hochul's mask mandate has been challenged in court.

On Monday, she announced a full stay of her mask regulation.

"I commend the Appellate Division, Second Department, for granting a full stay to keep our masking regulations in place for the duration of our appeal," Hochul said. "My primary responsibility as governor is to keep New Yorkers safe. Mask regulations keep our schools and businesses safe and open, protect vulnerable New Yorkers, and are critical tools as we work to get through this winter surge. Thanks to our efforts, including mask regulations, cases are declining and we are seeing major progress in the fight against COVID-19. I thank the attorney general and her team for their defense of these common-sense measures, and I am confident we will continue to prevail. We are committed to doing everything in our power to keep New Yorkers safe."

On Jan. 24, a Nassau County Supreme Court ruled the mandate couldn't be enforced, as it wasn't first approved by the New York State Legislature.

On Dec. 10, Hochul announced masks would be required to be worn in all indoor public places statewide, unless businesses or venues implement a vaccine requirement. That began Dec. 13, and was set to continue until Feb. 1.
